Man Charged In Knifing of CIA Aide

A jobless Washington man was arrested today and charged with stabbing and robbing a Central Intelligence Agency official last Friday, police reported.

The suspect, Richard Franklin, 23, of the 1200 block of Harvard street N.W., was arrested on a United States Commissioner's warrant charging him with robbery by force and violence.

Detective Donald J. Allen of the Robbery Squad made the arrest in the 800 block of New Jersey avenue N.W.

The victim, James D. Pembroke, 42, who rooms at 5110 Worthington drive in the Westmoreland section of Montgomery County, is in Casualty Hospital, recovering from a stab wound in the back. He is an administrative officer with CIA.

He told police he met his assailant, a colored man in a fourteenth street N.W. cocktail lounge and later drove him to the Ivy City section of Northeast Washington.

They were to visit a friend of his companion's, Mr. Pembroke related, but when he refused to enter the building where the friend lived, the colored man knocked him down and stabbed him.

The assailant also took his wallet, and discarded it after removing about $40, police said.

Mr. Pembroke, critically injured, crawled to Kendall and Gallaudet streets, about a block from the scene of the stabbing in the 1800 block of Corcoran street.

Robbery Squad Lt. Murray Kutner said a canvass of the Fourteenth street area by a special squad of detectives led police to obtain a warrant for Franklin. The suspect says he has not worked since his discharge from the Army in 1957.
